

Skin & Peels

A chemical or all natural solution is used, depending on the treatment chosen, as a method to improve facial skin by removing and repairing its damaged outer layer of skin cells. Alpha Hydroxy (AHA/BHA) acids are the gentlest of these and are used for milder peels. Medium to slightly deeper peels sometimes involve the application of trichloroacetic (TCA) acid and phenol acids. The precise formula used is adjusted to meet each patient's needs. Peels improve skin tone and texture, reduce signs of aging such as fine lines and wrinkles, unclog pores and aid in the treatment of acne, firm and tighten skin, reduce hyperpigmentation, pore size and noticeable scars, can remove tissue without ablation and stimulate the production of collagen and elastin. The skin is left softer, brighter, and healthier.

*Most of the following can also be performed on other areas such as the chest, back, arms, hands.

*Price to be determined upon consultation for other bodily areas and PCA Treatments to be determined upon consultation.

Dermaplaning

Dermaplaning is a gentle form of manual exfoliation of the skin that resurfaces sun-damaged, dull, dehydrated skin performed by using a surgical blade gently scraping the outermost layers of the epidermis ridding it of dead skin cells, and vellus hair. Dermaplaning exfoliates the skin, regenerates new skin cells thus leaving the complexion smooth, soft and vibrant.
